

Loyal Supporters... Today (Sat) I departed historic Truckee...

...and headed south towards home (Inyokern) past the amazingly-full Topaz Lake...

...which has not been this full in the 10-years I've been commuting north. Wow! But I digress...

This short-story is about correcting my camera-work, as I've been using a 10 y.o. digicam (FZ-1; Today's model is FZ-37). Clearly (no pun intended) it's time to "upgrade". Also, my normal/reliable Canon digicam has frozen (due to micro-dust and desert-use etc). So, I'm on "backup-backup" for some weeks as I remedy the situation. Until then, I'm doing the best-I-can with what-I've-got :-)

Again, the amazingly-full Lake Topaz...

There are super-shots on Rt.395 that I've always wanted to take, but "the light was wrong"...

Ha! Below a (house?) that was built last year, a terrifically-interesting structure...

Note the metal-monster on the right...

Abandoning my "home" of the past 2 months...

...which, in Truckee (literally) freezing temps (last night!) has been rough. Yeah I know, I'm supposed to be "glider tough" :-)

But HOME-I-AM and I feel great...

I'll "rest" prior to hosting dirt-school next week (starts Tuesday) which is for dirt-bikes and 4wd "stick shift" trucks.

Below my Fav dirt-pic (inserted so I can compare camera's)...

...and taken at Robbers Roost which will be both on our bike & truck agenda's.

Thanks for reading along...
